Blacktown City Council

Council snapshot of the revised draft Central City District Plan

The vision for Greater Sydney as a metropolis of three cities—the Western Parkland City, the Central River City and the Eastern Harbour City—means residents in the Central City District will have quicker and easier access to a wider range of jobs, housing types and activities as part of the transformation of their District.

The Central City District is part of the Central River City. Its extensive rail and road network, relative proximity to Australia's major trade gateways, along with the social connections of its multicultural communities provide links to the region, the country and the world.

The draft Central City District Plan guides the transition of the District within the context of Greater Sydney's three cities to improve the District's social, economic and environmental assets.

The District is one of the most dynamic and rapidly growing regions in Australia. It plays a pivotal role in Greater Sydney's future as an economic and employment powerhouse, a core hub for transport and services, and the home of vibrant and diverse centres and communities. It will be at the core of Greater Sydney's Central River City.

Parramatta CBD will be the driver of the Central River City and will be one of the top five CBDs in Australia.

The draft District Plan guides this growth and transition by capitalising on unprecedented city-scale infrastructure investments in transport, public domain, sporting and cultural institutions attracting large businesses. Greater Parramatta and the Olympic Peninsula (GPOP) will be a focus of development, jobs and skills growth.

Transport connections radiating north, south, east and west from Parramatta will optimise its locational advantage, improve business-to-business connections and provide quicker access for a larger number of skilled workers to businesses in Parramatta.

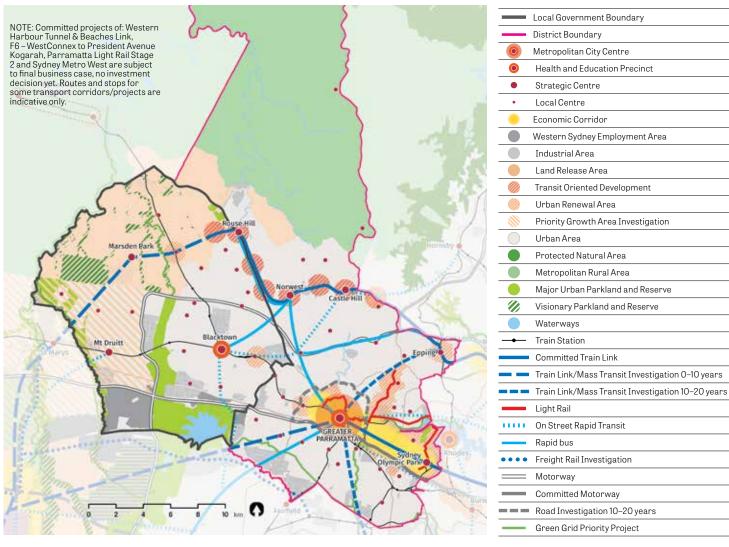

The Westmead health and education precinct will transition to an innovation district with greater diversity of knowledge-intensive jobs. People will have easy access to walking and cycling paths through Parramatta Park and Parramatta River to move between Westmead, Parramatta CBD and Parramatta North.

A 21st century clean-tech and advanced manufacturing cluster in precincts such as Camellia, Rydalmere, Silverwater and Auburn and the protection of industrial and urban services land will provide new skilled jobs to reinforce the Central River City's development.

Throughout the District's transition, cohesive and socially dynamic communities will be supported by new social infrastructure such as schools and community services, new cultural and sporting facilities, and the protection and enhancement of natural landscapes through the Greater Sydney Green Grid.

The quality of the Central City District's waterways such as Parramatta River, Duck River and South Creek will be enhanced.
